

PINEHURST SOUTHERN PINES ABERDEEN AREA

THE HOME OF AMERICAN GOLF

WELCOME

On behalf of the CVB Board of Directors and our dedicated staff, welcome to the Home of American Golf!

Our destination has been welcoming people to the Sandhills region of North Carolina for more than 125 years, and for the millions of visitors that have made the pilgrimage to the Pinehurst area from around the world, this place is like “coming home.” In fact, CEO of the United States Golf Association (USGA) Michael Whan used those exact words when the organization chose us to construct its second headquarters at Golf House Pinehurst.

But while the Pinehurst, Southern Pines, Aberdeen area is globally recognized as one of the finest golf destinations in the world with nearly 40 courses within a 15-mile radius, we are so much more than the game that is deeply rooted within our culture.

Among the majestic longleaf pines you will find a destination abundant in natural beauty, a place where you can stretch your legs, sit a spell in a rocking chair on a grand veranda, or take a leisurely stroll through quaint villages and along downtown streets that will remind you of a Hallmark postcard.

Our dining and shopping scene is vibrant and eclectic. We now boast breweries, a cider house and a destination distillery. We celebrate our small towns throughout Moore County every day, as each contributes to the unique experiences our visitors and residents enjoy in our tranquil paradise. With more than 250 annual events, there is something for everyone.

We hope our destination guide informs and inspires you to plan your first or 40th trip to the Pinehurst, Southern Pines, Aberdeen area. The common denominator in our destination: more than 6,000 workers employed in the tourism industry who live to make your stay remarkable and memorable with impeccable and incomparable Southern hospitality.

We are the Home of American Golf, and so much Moore! Welcome home!

Warmest Regards,

Phil Werz

GETTING AROUND

The ways of getting to the Sandhills are almost as numerous as the fun things to do when you arrive.

PLANES

It is landing gear down for flights coming in to the Moore County Airport or to nearby Raleigh-Durham International Airport, Fayetteville Regional Airport, Charlotte-Douglas International Airport and Piedmont Triad International Airport.

TRAINS

All aboard for a scenic train ride with Amtrak. Daily service to the area ensures you can stay and play as long as your schedule allows.

AUTOMOBILES

Whether you rent a car, hire a service or drive your own, seeing Pinehurst, Southern Pines, Aberdeen and all of Moore County from behind the wheel provides amazing views. Just remember to stop often and stretch your legs along our scenic streets and nature walks.

Getting Here

Whether you are driving or flying, we're looking forward to your visit. To assist with your planning, we've compiled a list of local resources.

- ▶ A 5-pronged traffic circle where N.C. 211, U.S. 15-501, N.C. 2 and Midland Road meet marks the hub of the Pinehurst, Southern Pines, Aberdeen area.
- ▶ Go north on 15-501 toward Carthage, east on Midland toward Southern Pines or south on 211 toward Aberdeen.
- ▶ Available within a 70-minute drive are airports in Raleigh/Durham and Fayetteville, and within 90 minutes from Greensboro.
- ▶ The Moore County Airport (KSOP) can handle private aircraft up to BAC III.
- ▶ Amtrak provides daily service directly to and from the downtown Southern Pines Train Station.

MOORE COUNTY IS HOME TO LEGENDARY GOLF COURSES
AND A HISTORY OF ICONIC CHAMPIONSHIPS. | By Lance Elko

When the Bostonian visionary James Walker Tufts purchased a large tract of scrubby land in 1895 to create a health retreat, one of his best moves came five years later. In 1900, Tufts hired a young Scottish golf pro, Donald Ross, who went on to famously design or co-design more than 400 courses in North America.

Ross's initial effort, a remake of the roughly conceived Pinehurst No. 1, was followed by his first 18-hole course: Pinehurst No. 2. And it was there that the seeds of a golf mecca were planted.

The world's best golfers have played here — Bobby Jones, Babe Zaharias, Byron Nelson, Sam Snead, Ben Hogan, Arnold Palmer, Jack Nicklaus, Johnny Miller, Tom Watson, Payne Stewart and Michelle Wie West. Pinehurst No. 2 has the distinction of hosting more single golf championships than any other course in America. It has hosted the men's and women's U.S. Opens, most recently in 2024. And the beat goes on: The U.S. Open championship will return in 2029, 2035, 2041 and 2047.

GET A GRIP AT GOLF PRIDE'S RETAIL LAB

Just inside the entrance to Pinehurst No. 8, you can't miss Golf Pride's headquarters. It's the home of the company's Retail Lab, and here, a team of experts are committed to improving your game by creating the optimal grip for your clubs.

Founded in 1949, Golf Pride recently jumped onto an innovative new fast track thanks to a fresh vision and the use of cutting-edge technology. Under the leadership of Jamie Ledford, company president, the Retail Lab is the first of its kind.

To begin a visit, the on-site team leads guests through a grip selection process to find the one that feels best, one that fits the unique hand of the golfer. Once the ideal grip is determined, guests are free to browse the facility, try a nine-hole putting green and check out other Golf Pride products while their clubs are being re-gripped.

In the Rapid Prototyping Lab, Golf Pride uses its proprietary rubber compounds, tools and molds to create physical prototypes within hours. Depending on drop-off time, players can expect a same-day turnaround.

When asked why Golf Pride chose this location, Ledford says that the world of golf flows through Pinehurst. It's like few other places in the world, he adds – "rich in history and always a draw for players from all over the globe."

Playing a Favorite

When actively touring and recording, Grammy Award winning musician Darius Rucker has little down time. But when he does, the former front man for Hootie & the Blowfish and award-winning country music artist likes to play one of his favorite courses, Pinehurst No. 10, not far from his residence in the Village of Pinehurst.

Larger Than Life

From its position by the 18th green of Pinehurst No. 2, the bronze Payne Stewart statue by sculptor Zenos Frudakis immortalizes the champion golfer's iconic fist-pump. Don't miss this opportunity for a triumphant photo opp.

World Golf Hall of Fame

IN 2023, THE WORLD GOLF HALL OF FAME RETURNED TO ITS BIRTHPLACE AT PINEHURST RESORT, WHERE THE GAME'S HISTORY COMES TO LIFE. | By Alex Podlogar

Tucked between Pinehurst Resort's Carolina Hotel and its Main Clubhouse, a gleaming 9,000-square-foot USGA Experience building houses some of golf's most valuable treasures. We caught up with Mike Trostel, director of the World Golf Hall of Fame, who shared some of his exhibits — and their impact on the sport's history.

PAYNE STEWART'S RAIN VEST

In the 1999 U.S. Open, golfer Payne Stewart delivered one of the most dramatic endings in major championship history, sinking a 15-foot putt on the final hole to secure a one-stroke victory at Pinehurst No. 2.

“When unexpected weather during the final round called for a rain jacket that Stewart felt was too restrictive, he cut off the sleeves with a borrowed pair of scissors — first at the elbows, then at the shoulders,” says Trostel. “His rainproof ‘vest’ proved perfect for the conditions, and remained on from his first drive to his final 15-foot par putt that won him the championship.”

Where to see it: The “Style and Substance: The Life and Legacy of Payne Stewart” exhibit (on display through September 2026) features more than 100 artifacts. The sleeves and scissors are also on display in the main hallway of Pinehurst Resort’s clubhouse.

BRYSON DECHAMBEAU'S SAND WEDGE

In the final round of the 2024 U.S. Open at Pinehurst, golfer Bryson DeChambeau used this wedge to get up and down from the front greenside bunker at the 18th hole. He hit the 55-yard bunker shot to 4 feet, setting up his winning par putt.

“He was the only player to get up and down from that front greenside bunker in the entire championship,” Trostel says. “You also may notice some turf on the sole of the club. That is because he also used this same wedge for his hole-in-one challenge, where he hit golf balls from a mat over his house to a green in the back yard. He made an ace with his 14th shot on the 16th day. These videos garnered more than 80 million views on TikTok.”

Where to see it: In the USGA Championships Gallery, the wedge is on display along with DeChambeau’s final-round scorecard from the 2024 U.S. Open.

NANCY LOPEZ'S BARBIE DOLL

Golfer Nancy Lopez’s father promised to buy her a Barbie doll if she played well in her first golf tournament.

“As a child, Lopez’s routine was to come home from the golf course and play with her Barbies,” says Trostel. “This incentive paid dividends over the years as she built up her collection.”

Where to see it: The “Nancy Lopez: The Making of a Champion” exhibit is on display through March 2026.

TIGER WOODS' HAVEMEYER TROPHY

Of all his accomplishments, golfer Tiger Woods’ unprecedented run of winning three consecutive U.S. Junior Amateurs — immediately followed by three consecutive U.S. Amateurs — may be the most impressive.

“Starting in the 1994 U.S. Amateur, Woods won 18 consecutive matches in that championship to claim those three straight Havemeyer Trophies,” Trostel says. “In each of his three 36-hole championship matches, Woods trailed by significant margins. He was six down to Hank Kuehne in 1994 at TPC Sawgrass, three down to Buddy Marucci in 1995 at Newport C.C., and five down to Steve Scott in 1996 at Pumpkin Ridge.”

Where to see it: One of Woods’ personal Havemeyer Trophies is on display in his World Golf Hall of Fame locker.

LLOYD MANGRUM'S PURPLE HEART MEDAL

Golfer Lloyd Mangrum received a Purple Heart for his World War II service, which included being wounded during the Battle of the Bulge. He was also wounded in Normandy.

“Just months after being discharged, Mangrum won the 1946 U.S. Open in a playoff over Byron Nelson and Vic Ghezzi,” says Trostel. “He went on to win 30 more times on the PGA Tour in the decade he returned from war.”

Where to see it: In addition to the Purple Heart medal on display in his World Golf Hall of Fame locker, Mangrum also earned another Purple Heart, two Silver Stars, two Bronze Stars and four battle stars during his service.

ALWAYS PINEHURST, Always Better

FOR A PLACE THAT HAS HOSTED MORE SINGLE GOLF CHAMPIONSHIPS THAN ANY SITE IN AMERICA, PINEHURST REFUSES TO REST ON ITS HISTORICAL LAURELS.

By Alex Podlogar

Top: Pinehurst No. 2 - 9th hole

When Michelle Wie West hoisted the trophy following her triumph in the 2014 U.S. Women's Open, it closed a fortnight of golf that had never been seen. A week before, Wie West was in the gallery on the very same course, joining other LPGA Tour stars following Martin Kaymer as he cruised to his second major championship after winning the U.S. Open. Both majors were played on the venerable Pinehurst No. 2 in consecutive weeks, a feat never attempted in major championship golf, and one, though wildly successful, that has not been done since.

And yet, what has followed in Pinehurst Resort's growth in the 10 years since might be even more impressive — all of it bookended by the decade between U.S. Opens, which returned to No. 2 for the fourth time in Pinehurst's history in June 2024.

"There's a line I like to think about, and that's 'Always Pinehurst, always better,'" says Pinehurst Resort CEO Bob Dedman Jr.

In April, Pinehurst opened its first original golf course in nearly three decades after tapping one of the era's greatest architects, Tom Doak, to build Pinehurst No. 10 on a slice of 900 acres the Resort has acquired south of its main clubhouse. The site features dramatic elevation changes, natural sandy areas, three lakes and dramatic remnants of an early 20th century sand mining operation.

“No. 10 starts fairly gentle, then it starts going into the old quarry works where it gets downright crazy for a little bit, then the course gets up on the hill and there’s a beautiful, sweeping view,” Doak says. “All of the holes coming in are challenging, even when you move down into the gentler terrain. It’s a dramatic golf course; more than I originally thought.”

Pinehurst’s new golden age began with the restoration of No. 2 by Bill Coore and Ben Crenshaw. From there, the march was on — and is ongoing.

The Deuce opened in 2016 in the main clubhouse, overlooking the 18th green of No. 2. A year later, renowned golf architect Gil Hanse crafted The Cradle, Pinehurst’s wildly popular par-3 short course. In 2018, Hanse redesigned Pinehurst No. 4, helping one of Pinehurst’s now 10 championship courses vault back into numerous Top 100 course rankings. That same year, Pinehurst Brewing Co. debuted to great acclaim among guests and locals alike.

Pinehurst continues to invest in its present and future. In 2024, Pinehurst completed the final phase of a three-part renovation of its signature hotel, The Carolina, revitalizing all of its rooms and the lobby, working carefully to enhance the charm of yesteryear with all of the comforts guests expect today. Also, the Carolina Vista Lounge, a stylish new restaurant unlike any other in Pinehurst, opened in the renovated space that was the Ryder Cup Lounge.

In 2025, Pinehurst offered guests luxury accommodations with golf course views in the expansive Cottages at Pinehurst No. 8. The Resort also partnered with Titleist to open what Global Golf Post described as an “Apple store” for golf: Titleist Shop at Padgett Center. This immersive fitting and retail experience is steps away from Pinehurst

No. 2’s iconic 18th green.

Pinehurst has fully welcomed the home to its second headquarters. Its research and development center and the return of the World Golf Hall of Fame are now a signature part of the Resort’s thriving main campus.

“Pinehurst is not a time capsule,” says Tom Pashley, Pinehurst Resort’s President. “This is not a place where you come and just look at how things used to be and celebrate the past. You can do that here, but you’re also celebrating the present, and looking forward to the future.”

And, to think, the U.S. Open and U.S. Women’s Open return in 2029. At Pinehurst, there is always more to come. “I’d like to think the golden days of Pinehurst are ahead of us,” Dedman says. “When I think about the future of Pinehurst, thinking about looking back 20 years from now, I hope we’re even closer to achieving our purpose. And that’s where we honor timeless traditions and inspire legendary stories, one smile, one round, one moment at a time.”

Your Guide to Pinehurst Dining

YOU DON'T HAVE TO BE A GOLFER TO ENJOY AS WIDE A VARIETY OF DELECTABLE DINING OFFERINGS AS YOUR HEART AND TASTES ASPIRE. PLAN TO STAY AWHILE.

By Alex Podlogar

It's not just the food that fuels Pinehurst Resort's executive chef Thierry Debailleul, affectionately known as "Chef T."

For all the myriad of dishes and cocktails on a menu, for all the choices that run from bountiful breakfasts to casual lunches to fine dining to nightcaps, it's the natural setting that inspires him.

"That's the beauty of Pinehurst," Debailleul says. "We're not a high-rise tower. We're not stuck downtown. We're kind of in a semi-wilderness in the pines, and I think it's fun to utilize that and express that for a lot of people."

Many of those people are golfers. But just like Pinehurst's evolution over the last decade has signaled an earnestness to make the game that has been a bedrock for the North Carolina Sandhills more accessible and fun to more people, so, too, has it placed an added emphasis on its dining options.

It's a dining scene that doesn't need a car. Perhaps a resort shuttle is helpful, but it's not necessary. Imagine, in one day:

Start with a Southern-style breakfast buffet. In the stately "Queen of the South" dining room in The Carolina Hotel, a glorious breakfast has been dubbed "the best breakfast in golf" by Golf Channel. Dine under sparkling chandeliers and amidst a live pianist.

Have lunch at Pinehurst's main clubhouse. In The Deuce, a pub with large windows that open behind the bar and onto the club's east veranda, diners breathe in the pine-scented breeze while overlooking the 18th green of famed Pinehurst No. 2. Choose from casual entrees like Southern salads, burgers and handhelds.

"What's important, as we have a lot of casual restaurants, is that there's something unique in every one of them," Debailleul says. "Every dish is uniquely made. We don't have the same burgers everywhere, the same Reubens everywhere.

"You can be rushing between two rounds of golf, but whatever we can do to make your lunch special, we'll do it. The speed of service will be phenomenal, the burger will be amazing, everything cooked to order, spot on. That's what we're after. It's always an experience."

Enjoy fine dining, white tablecloth Italian fare at The Magnolia Inn's Villaggio Ristorante & Bar.

Or return to The Carolina for the stylish and festive Carolina Vista Lounge, which features a dazzling bar in the center and a nightlife that spills onto the veranda wrapping the hotel.

Retreat to the Village's winding streets a short walk away. At the cozy Holly Inn, choose the intimate dinner fare of The Tavern or its wood-paneled fine dining neighbor, the 1895 Grille. Tucked a few steps down from The Holly's lobby, the 1895 Grille's ingredients are brought straight from Carolina farms to the kitchen and transformed into award-winning delights day after day. Nightly specials assure a unique experience on each visit, though no one will blame you for ordering the triple chocolate soufflé at the close of dinner here.

Pinehurst Brewing Company is more than just its 10 beers brewed on-site; it's a smokehouse full of options.

Just up the hill inside The Manor, the North & South Bar is a whiskey and bourbon bar unlike any spot in Pinehurst, with more than 70 spirits along with traditional and inspired cocktails on the menu.

"To be in culinary, you have to be passionate. You have to have a love for it," says Chef T. "Cooking is not an act of feeding yourself — it's an experience."

As Pinehurst Sandmines continues to evolve in Aberdeen, Station 21, its new restaurant and bar, offers an inspired Southwestern grill fare, creating curated dishes such as Stuffed Poblano Peppers, Smoked Brisket Tacos, Peach Orchard Salads, Texas Hill Country Quail Knots, Carne Asadas, Tamales, Breakfast Burritos and Chilaquiles.

In 2026, Pinehurst Resort plans to open Wiregrass, a distinct farm-to-table restaurant, in the main clubhouse.

SOUTHERN PINES GOLF CLUB

After a major renovation in 2021, the Southern Pines Golf Club graduated to whole new level of play. The original Donald Ross design — the third in his storied career — was dramatically enhanced over the course of 18 months by Kyle Franz, who previously transformed the courses at Pine Needles and Mid Pines.

Franz removed trees, reworked bunkers, and added new greens and sandscapes. At the same time, he retained the native character of Ross' original design. That change was a long time coming.

The Southern Pines Golf Club opened in 1906, and decades later saw some of golf's greatest, like Sam Snead and Ben Hogan, play here. In 1951, the Southern Pines Elks Club bought the course and held it until 2019, when they sold it to an investment group in partnership with Pine Needles Lodge and Golf Club and Mid Pines Inn and Golf Club. The move brought together three Ross courses in close proximity, where they now share programs and resources.

Stay and Play packages are available. The Summer Ultimate Golf Package, for example, offers Mid Pines accommodations (although the Inn is closed for renovations, Mid Pines offers course-side lodging and nearby hotel rooms); 36 holes at Pine Needles, Mid Pines and Southern Pines; breakfast, lunch and dinner; and carts, unlimited range balls and club storage.

Southern Pines Golf Club is a public course that's also home to club members and their guests. Golfers can play every day year-round except for some holidays and maintenance days. Peak season runs from mid-March to mid-May, and from mid-September through October. southernpinesgolfclub.com

Making History

Southern Pines Golf Course was the site of high drama last September when Cyrus Stewart won the 32nd Annual Mid-Amateur Championship after a seven-hole playoff match against Zach Edmondson. The competitors were tied for first at -8 after all three rounds. In his final round, Stewart shot seven birdies and an eagle. He tied the course record set by Sam Snead in 1946 with a final round score of 63.

PINE NEEDLES LODGE AND GOLF CLUB

Minutes away from the Village of Pinehurst and the town of Southern Pines, this resort boasts outstanding course action, hospitable accommodations, professional instruction, and gourmet and casual dining.

The 18-hole course at Pine Needles was designed by golf legend Donald Ross in 1927. In 2017, the course was painstakingly restored, with hills and bunkers reflecting the spirit of Ross's imaginative design. The highly regarded 7,000-plus yards course — rated fourth in the state by Golfweek — was the first in the nation to be awarded four U.S. Women's Open Championships.

Before teeing up on Hole 1, you'll appreciate a well-conceived warm-up course called The Loop. Here is where you can practice your short game with three Par 3s and a Par 4.

Pine Needles is known for its special golf events. Beginning Feb. 26 through March 1, 2026, the annual Pine Needles Invitational brings together competitive amateurs. The tournament is so popular that the 2026 field is closed to all but past players.

In early November, the annual Couples Jamboree is host to a friendly Quest for the Bell competition that's geared to socializing and a bounty of good food. The event, which draws couples from across the U.S. and Canada, has been going strong for more than 50 years.

The resort's accommodations include a number of amenity-filled rooms in chalet-style lodges that can hold groups large or small.

Guests can enjoy fireside gourmet fare at the Crest Dining Room or more casual fare at In the Rough Lounge. pineneedleslodge.com

Transforming a GRAND OLD DAME

The grand, Georgian-style Mid Pines Inn and Golf Club has welcomed golf royalty since it was built in 1921. Three-time major champion Julius Boros once made this his home base, and Sam Snead could often be seen at the inn and on the course.

But last fall, the historic Mid Pines Inn began a new life. The stately inn, which looms over the 18th hole of the Donald Ross-designed Mid Pines course, began a major renovation to preserve the inn's esteemed heritage.

The reimagined Mid Pines Inn, part of the Mid Pines Inn & Golf Club, will include all-new guest rooms, renovated food and beverage centers, and a brand-new swimming pool. Renovations are under the direction of Marine & Lawn Hotel & Resorts, a company whose work includes specializing in restoring old properties around the world and most recently in the UK. This venture is the company's first in the United States.

The course, which today befits the inn's original grandeur, was restored in 2013 and named #3 Best Public Course in North Carolina in 2024 by Golfweek. Mid Pines was designed to offer some challenges, but largely to invite friendly competition for club members and guests.

During the makeover, the golf course will remain open, and food and beverages will be available. The resort is a short drive south of downtown Southern Pines. midpinesinn.com

LEGACY

MID SOUTH CLUB

TALAMORE GOLF RESORT

ABERDEEN'S LEGACY PROVES GOOD THINGS COME IN THREES.

By Brad King

When Talamore Golf Resort acquired Legacy, a Nicklaus-design course located in Aberdeen, the investment represented a significant addition to the growing portfolio of top-tier golf course packages in the Sandhills.

Legacy holds a rich tradition of hosting prestigious tournaments, including the 2000 U.S. Women's Amateur Public Links Championship, famously played by then 10-year-old Michelle Wie West.

Golfers can expect a blend of classic Legacy design with fresh improvements, aligning the course with Talamore's other premier offerings. Enhancements in 2025 included new cart paths and bridges, a complete bunker renovation, and extensive drainage and grassing improvements.

Talamore's acquisition of Legacy creates yet another stellar trio of courses in the Pinehurst area. Much like the famous Pinehurst Nos. 2, 4 and 8, and the historic Pine Needles, Mid Pines and Southern Pines Golf Club trio, the combination of Talamore Golf Resort, Mid South Club and now Legacy positions the resort as a must-visit destination for golf enthusiasts.

The trio offers a wide variety of challenges and playing styles, from Talamore's visually stunning Rees Jones design to the Arnold Palmer signature course at Mid South, and now the Jack Nicklaus II course at Legacy.

Since opening in 1991, Legacy has impressed golfers with its unique design features, such as strategically placed bunkers and water hazards that challenge even the most seasoned players. Talamore plans to make subtle modifications to enhance playability without compromising the character that defines the course. The resort is also focusing on improving the turf quality, which will ensure pristine playing conditions year-round.

All these upgrades will align Legacy with the high standards set by Talamore and Mid South, ensuring a cohesive, luxurious experience across all three properties. The enhancements, along with Talamore's renowned hospitality, will make Legacy a standout option for golfers visiting the Pinehurst area.

18 BEST

DISCOVER MOORE COUNTY'S TOP 18, MUST-PLAY HOLES, ACCORDING TO A ROUNDUP OF LOCAL GOLF EXPERTS. | By Ron Green Jr.

With so much golf in the Pinehurst area, it's inevitable that discussions ensue about which is the best course, which is the best group of courses, and, naturally, which are the best holes.

In that sense, golf is no different than comparing favorite restaurants. Some prefer a steakhouse. Others lean toward Italian. Still others like sushi. Within each of those groups, there are favorite dishes, just as there are favorite holes at favorite golf courses.

The task of choosing 18 holes fell to a group of 10 voters with extensive backgrounds in the game and familiarity with the region.

The goal was to create a traditional par-72 course — four par 3s, three par 5s and 12 par 4s — chosen from courses both public and private in the area.

Like golf, it is an imperfect process but one built on a foundation of finding holes that challenge and inspire, while exemplifying the Pinehurst experience.

For those who know the area, the list will likely have them shaking their heads in approval about many of the holes, while raising their eyebrows at some others. For prospective visitors to the area, it's a bucket list of sorts.

COUNTRY CLUB OF NORTH CAROLINA (DOGWOOD) – 13TH HOLE

LEGACY – 18TH HOLE

FOREST CREEK GOLF CLUB NORTH COURSE – 17TH HOLE

MID PINES INN & GOLF CLUB – 12TH HOLE

1 COUNTRY CLUB OF NORTH CAROLINA (CARDINAL) 15TH HOLE

Par 5 | 521 Yards

This is a classic risk-reward par 5 that gets increasingly more challenging as players approach the green. Bunkers right, water left and a two-tiered green make accuracy critical.

2 COUNTRY CLUB OF NORTH CAROLINA (DOGWOOD) 13TH HOLE

Par 3 | 166 Yards

Ellis Maples designed many of the favorite courses throughout the Carolinas, and CCNC represents his best work. When Kris Spence updated the Dogwood, he enhanced an already demanding hole.

3 DORMIE CLUB 3RD HOLE

Par 4 | 298 Yards

Bill Coore and Ben Crenshaw created a classic, short par 4 here while making it look like it has been there forever. Playing downhill then up to a knobby green, it's a delight.

4 FOREST CREEK GOLF CLUB NORTH COURSE 17TH HOLE

Par 4 | 361 Yards

The culmination of a three-hole run around a lake in the Tom Fazio-designed course. The tee shot must carry water and avoid a fairway bunker before dealing with a pot bunker in front of the green.

5 LEGACY 18TH HOLE

Par 4 | 432 Yards

This finishing hole is nicknamed "The Bear" — and not just because Jack Nicklaus designed it with his son, Jack Jr. It's a brute of a finishing hole that doesn't surrender many birdies.

6 MID PINES INN & GOLF CLUB 15TH HOLE

Par 5 | 478 Yards

Another example of Donald Ross's design ingenuity, this par 5 offers multiple challenges. A good tee shot that avoids fairway bunkers allows longer hitters to reach the green in two.

7 MID PINES INN & GOLF CLUB 12TH HOLE

Par 4 | 380 Yards

This is a beautiful example of Sandhills golf. It's not overly long or threatening, but it rewards good shots, penalizes misses and forces players to stay below the hole on the sloping green.

8 MID PINES INN & GOLF CLUB 4TH HOLE

Par 4 | 330 Yards

Another exceptional short par 4 that showcases Ross design features, this hole is about position rather than power. Keeping the ball to the left off the tee and into the green becomes the challenge.

9 MID SOUTH CLUB 18TH HOLE

Par 4 | 399 Yards

The finishing hole on this Arnold Palmer design is a serious challenge. It is cut into a hillside, there is water down the right, and a good tee shot still leaves a difficult approach before getting to the clubhouse.

10 PINEHURST NO. 2 18TH HOLE Par 4 | 366 Yards

A strong hole that plays uphill from tee to green, this is where Payne Stewart made history and golfers now strike their own pose for photographs. Making par on this hole makes the post-round beverage taste even better.

11 PINEHURST NO. 2 9TH HOLE Par 3 | 148 Yards

The essence of Ross' genius with brilliant bunkering around a two-tiered green that demands precision. It was beautifully restored by Coore and Crenshaw.

12 PINEHURST NO. 8 14TH HOLE Par 4 | 363 Yards

The challenge starts at the tee where players must determine how much of the marsh to challenge on this Fazio design. The more aggressive the tee shot, the easier the approach shot.

13 PINEHURST NO. 10 8TH HOLE Par 4 | 385 Yards

This hole is like playing down the spine of a dragon; there's no other hole at Pinehurst like it. The tee shot plays over a 25-foot dune into a landing area of a two-tiered fairway, and the punchbowl green is partially hidden by a dune in front.

14 PINEHURST NO. 2 5TH HOLE Par 5 | 462 Yards

Long considered one of the greatest par 4s in the world (only 29 percent of the field hit the green in the 1999 U.S. Open), it has been converted to a par 5 while still featuring one of the most dangerous crowned green complexes anywhere.

15 PINE NEEDLES LODGE & GOLF CLUB 2ND HOLE Par 4 | 438 Yards

This is a testament to simple but outstanding design. After a tee shot to the crest of a hill, the approach is often played from a downhill lie to a green that runs away.

16 SOUTHERN PINES GOLF CLUB 8TH HOLE Par 4 | 388 Yards

SPGC is a Donald Ross original, renovated in recent years by rising-star course designer Kyle Franz. The 8th hole starts from the highest point of the golf course and calls for a fade off the tee — but don't go too far right. Well-placed bunkers and a pond farther to the right could be described as scenic but diabolical.

17 TALAMORE GOLF RESORT 18TH HOLE Par 4 | 400 Yards

This dogleg left has water and a row of bunkers that split the dual fairway. Players must decide how aggressive to be off the tee, knowing a bailout leaves a more challenging shot to the green.

18 TOBACCO ROAD GOLF CLUB 14TH HOLE Par 3 | 178 Yards

Designer Mike Strantz was also an artist, and he created a beauty with this short hole that incorporates water, sand and wispy grasses. It's no wonder players snap photographs of this hole.

WOODLAKE COUNTRY CLUB

This gated community has established itself as a welcoming oasis in rural Moore County.

A semi-private club that offers a meticulously managed 18-hole golf course, driving range, large pool, fitness center, racquet sports facilities and much more, Woodlake is all about amenity-filled leisure that includes good food at the heralded Maples Grill.

Friendly golf tournaments among members on the course winding around a 12,000-acre spring-fed lake are held seasonally. The lake offers boating, marina docking, water skiing and fishing. The social center for the club is the stately Historical Oates House. Built in 1792, the house was transported from Fayetteville, then renovated and expanded.

Stay and Play packages with accommodations in homes or condos coupled with a complete roster of recreational amenities are available.

Woodlake Country Club, located in Vass, is a 15-minute drive east of Southern Pines, 20 minutes from Pinehurst and 40 minutes west of Fayetteville. woodlakecountryclubnc.com

Foxfire Clubhouse

Time for Renewal

MAJOR CHANGES IN A PAIR OF LONG-STANDING GOLF COURSES ARE SURE TO MAKE GOLFERS IN THE PINEHURST AREA HAPPY. | By Lance Elko

A new look and a new owner: That's what the courses at the Country Club of Whispering Pines and the Foxfire Country Club are getting. Each club is home to two 18-hole courses built more than 60 years ago.

Located about 5 miles north of Pinehurst, Whispering Pines courses were designed in 1959 by Ellis Maples, a member of the Carolinas Golf Hall of Fame. Both the Pines Course and the River Course feature Champion Bermuda Greens and a lightly rolling terrain. They were created to offer challenges to experienced players but to be accessible for any skill level. Golfers will have to negotiate around the lakes and streams on the back nine of the River Course.

Foxfire, located about 6 miles southwest of Pinehurst, offers the Red Fox and Gray Fox courses. Often cited as the club members' favorite, the Red Fox is the more difficult. Success on the Gray Fox depends on players' shot accuracy. Both courses are surrounded by mature trees and present undulating fairways. A memorable water hazard, Lake MacKenzie will test golfers in the early holes of both courses.

Last July, the newly formed Rolling Pines LLC announced the acquisition of both clubs. Kelly Miller, managing partner of Rolling Pines, pledged to make significant improvements to the four courses. Noting that new golf development in Moore County has been stagnant for the past 20 years, Miller said that "North Carolina is growing, and Raleigh, Sanford and Fort Bragg seem to be getting closer and closer to us."

Both Whispering Pines and Foxfire need attention to detail, says Miller. "Moore County is projected to add more than 60,000 people by 2050. And there really hasn't been anything out there that's kind of affordable for folks that are coming in," says Miller. He adds that Rolling Pines is making a long-term commitment that will employ golf architect Kyle Franz, who over the past 12 years oversaw major restorations of the Pine Needles, Mid Pines and Southern Pines courses.

Rolling Pines operates under the parent company Mid Pines Development Group, owners of the popular Pine Needles, Mid Pines and Southern Pines golf clubs. Although all five clubs are under the same umbrella, the new Whispering Pines and Foxfire operations will operate separately from the existing membership structure.

Pinehurst's New Golden Age: A Sandmines Renaissance

WITH THE EMERGENCE OF PINEHURST SANDMINES, PINEHURST RESORT UNVEILS NEW ACCOMMODATION AND DINING OPTIONS. | By Alex Podlogar

Sandmines Photography courtesy Pinehurst Resort

At Pinehurst Resort, history never rests. Neither does the future. That's never been more evident than with the continued evolution of Pinehurst Sandmines.

Just a few months after opening, No. 10 was named as the Best New Public Course of 2024. A name rooted deeply into local history, Pinehurst Sandmines covers more than 900 acres in Aberdeen, about 4 miles south of the Resort's main clubhouse. Doak's masterful layout features dramatic elevation changes, natural sandy areas and dramatic remnants of an early 20th century sand mining operation.

After a year of maturity, Pinehurst No. 10 already showcases the site's striking topography, set against the dramatically sloping northwest ridge.

A 6,000-square-foot golf shop and clubhouse now anchor the landscape, while Station 21, a vibrant new restaurant and bar, has become one of the area's most popular dining destinations.

What comes next is equally ambitious. In 2025, Pinehurst announced that legendary architects Bill Coore and Ben Crenshaw will design and build Pinehurst No. 11, set to open in Fall 2027 alongside No. 10. Future development plans for the property also include a short course and a new lodge, further establishing Sandmines as one of golf's most distinctive destinations.

"It's such a wonderful site, just because of its inherent character," says Coore. "That character was essentially created, not all of it is natural, but it has all been reclaimed by nature. This land is left over from all that mining from the 1930s. The spoil piles are here, and Mother Nature provided the trees, and it's all incredible. It's not too often you get that kind of combination, and it creates a site that is extraordinarily interesting for golf."

It's another era of Pinehurst's new golden age, which began with the restoration of famed Pinehurst No. 2 by Coore and Crenshaw. From there, the march was on, with the last 15 years a testament to the bold vision of CEO Bob Dedman Jr. and the Dedman family to set into motion a new era at Pinehurst.

Yet Sandmines also honors the humble beginnings of the North Carolina Sandhills. Starting in the 1920s, this land was home to thriving mining operations, notably Pleasants Sand and Supply, which shipped sand from Aberdeen along the adjacent rail line for construction projects across the country — including another North Carolina landmark, the Blue Ridge Parkway.

When the mining operations closed in the mid-1970s, the dunes, mounds and berms left behind were slowly reclaimed by nature. Decades later, that same rugged landscape is being reimagined beneath the towering pines that restored it.

"Pinehurst's past, present and future is right here in the sand," says Tom Pashley, Pinehurst Resort President. "We look forward to seeing what more can be mined in this area."

Found TREASURES

EVEN IF YOU DON'T SNAG A PINECONE HANDCRAFTED BY LOCAL ARTISANS, YOU'LL FIND ADVENTURE AND NATURAL BEAUTY. | By Robin Sutton Anders & Elizabeth Ferrelli

Now in its fourth year, the Pinecone Pathways Program is a community-wide scavenger hunt that celebrates Moore County's trails. Starting on the first day of spring, each week for a five-week period, designated "pinecone hiders" tuck hand-blown, four-inch works of art on or along designated Moore County trails, nestled at the base of trees or peeking out under pine straw.

This year, in honor of America's 250th birthday, treasure-seekers have an opportunity to uncover something extra special — and to be eligible to win a prize. "As in years past, these hand-crafted pinecones are forged through the expertise of Starworks' glassblowers," says Phil Werz, Convention and Visitors Bureau president and CEO. "But this year, 25 of the 100 glass pinecones will be red, white and blue."

Werz believes Pinecone Pathways is a fun way to join the America 250 celebrations across the country. "It's not just the Revolutionary War we're remembering, but the history that led us to where we are — how we've evolved 250 years as a people, as a country, as Moore County. Our natural and cultural resources are a very important part of our history."

Starworks, a glassblowing studio in Star, offers rental space for glass artists, workshops for the public, a resident artist and internship program, and high school and college glass curriculum. The trails where these glass pinecones are hidden are announced via social media so hunters know how to direct their search.

When lucky finders uncover a handmade pinecone, they register it using a QR code and unique number, found on an attached tag. Then, the pinecones become one-of-a-kind mementos.

"We had no idea that the Pinecone Pathways Program would take off and become as viral as it did," says Werz. "We've seen people visiting from several states to try and find a rare glass pinecone. The thrill of the hunt, coupled with knowing you cannot just go out and buy one, made it a 'must have' for everyone taking the time to be part of the search."

Find a Trail

Moore County's extensive network of 32 trails gives novice and experienced hikers plenty of reasons to get out and explore. Here are three locals' favorites.

PINEHURST GREENWAY TRAIL

Stretching about 6 miles, the Pinehurst Greenway Trail winds through Rassie Wicker Park — complete with a splash pad and an arboretum — and Cannon Park. Take time to visit Cannon Park's Camelot Playground, where children can explore a Medieval-style castle.

SOUTHERN PINES GREENWAY LOOP

Head to Reservoir Park for an easy 2-mile loop. In less than an hour, you can explore the lake's waterfront, stopping to watch turtles lounge on the lily pads or hummingbirds dart and flit across your path.

BEAR CREEK TRAIL SYSTEM

For a diverse sampling of the Bear Creek terrain, start your 6.5-mile hike at the Elise or Water Plant trailheads in Robbins, and follow the "Super Loop" arrows. FROM PETALS to PINES: A Garden Lover's Paradise

Tucked behind Sandhills Community College, the Sandhills Horticultural Gardens is a lush, colorful and peaceful Moore County treasure. Established in the 1970s, today's 32-acre showstopper is all thanks to the hard work of college horticulture students, staff and community volunteers.

One of those students, Lee Bunch, is now the executive director. With a focus on education, Bunch oversees care of well-established spaces from the formal Sir Walter Raleigh Garden and Hillside Garden to the Desmond Native Wetland Trail Garden and the Holly Garden, which put Sandhills Horticultural Gardens on the map.

As visitors stroll through the holly garden, they have to look twice to believe these are actually hollies. Trees with 40-foot-tall canopies shade walking paths that yield glimpses of berries whose colors defy expectations: yellow, orange, black and magenta berries prove that holly bushes don't have to be the prickly red variety. "The peach tree holly has such a cool leaf," says Bunch. "Nobody thinks it's a holly."

Admission is free, and you'll discover vibrant blooms every month of the year, from roses, camellias and daffodils to crepe myrtles, azaleas, and, of course, hollies. sandhills.edu

Other Gardens to Explore

Weymouth Gardens

Designed by landscape architect Alfred B. Yeomans, the gardens beyond the Weymouth Center for the Arts & Humanities reflect every bit of the beauty and creativity represented in the cultural programming that takes place in the Boyd House and on its grounds. Flowers spill from raised beds, hydrangeas frame events and weddings, perennials and annuals attract pollinators and boxwoods define formal gardens. Free admission. weymouthcenter.org

The Healing Garden at the Clara McLean House

This place of respite was designed especially for the visitors of the Clara McLean House, part of FirstHealth Moore Regional Hospital. The garden features a cascading water feature, fairy houses, garden art, and checker and chess boards. "It also provides a peaceful destination for those who simply appreciate the beauty of nature," says Lynda Acker, one of the garden's co-designers and co-creators. claramcleanhouse.org

Since 2020, the number of American pickleball players has tripled – and the trend is no different in Moore County. Enter The Pickle Place in Seven Lakes, a climate-controlled, indoor facility with four pickleball courts with a cushioned surface. Not sure what all the fuss is about? Sign up for a lesson or clinic to learn the rules and improve your game. Online court reservations and ball machine rentals make it easy to get started.

Located in Southern Pines on Morganton Road between South Bennett Street and U.S. Highway 1, Memorial Park is a local-favorite for family outings, birthday parties, reunions, company outings and group meetings. In addition to playground equipment, visitors can reserve a shelter with a grill and picnic tables.

Memorial Park is also home to the Southern Pines Recreation Center's gyms, lighted tennis courts, lighted basketball court, two lighted outdoor racquetball courts, shuffleboard courts, two pickleball courts and three baseball/softball/football fields. There are also 16 horseshoe courts and a sand volleyball court.

When Moore County's first public skatepark, the Elaine T. Baillie Skatepark, opened in Memorial Park, skaters embraced the all-concrete 7,000-square-foot park, complete with a bowl, fly box, pyramid and handrails.

Also in Southern Pines, the Morganton Road Sports Complex contains the Armory softball/baseball field, the Optimist baseball field, and four soccer fields perfect for multi-team tournaments, company sponsored-games and events. The fields, plus a playground, are open from dawn to dusk.

The National Athletic Village is home to 80 acres of adventure. With multiple Bermuda grass fields, an indoor multi-sport court, 3-D archery range, airsoft field, performance gym and a Spartan-like obstacle course, there is something for everyone. Don't miss the Beer Garden and Beach, complete with sand volleyball courts.

The 32-acre Aberdeen Ransdell Sportsplex on U.S. 15-501, complete with a concession stand and restrooms, is a frequent host to Parks and Recreation sports leagues. And the Moore County Sports Complex, also located off U.S. 15-501 in Carthage, offers playgrounds, four multi-purpose sports fields and a splash pad. The complex also houses a recreation center with a gymnasium containing two full-size high school basketball courts, four volleyball courts and four pickleball courts.

THE CENTER of the POTTERY WORLD

FOR MILLENNIA, PEOPLE HAVE TURNED SANDHILLS CLAY INTO POTTERY. HERE’S HOW TO EXPERIENCE THAT HISTORY. | By Laura Lee

Multi-generational ceramicist Ben Owen III has been throwing pottery for as long as he can remember, first under the guiding hand of his grandfather. After studying design in college then ceramics in Japan, he returned to Seagrove to carry on his family legacy. Home to just 300 residents, Seagrove has molded generations of artists, earning its reputation as the nation’s Pottery Capital.

“We’re called the Sandhills region but if you go down below the sand, you find really good clay,” Owen says. “Most of our ingredients for our clay bodies come from the region. As an artist, Seagrove is a great natural, as well as cultural, environment to be in.”

Native Americans relied on Seagrove’s abundance of clay for millennia, followed by early American settlers who made water jugs, bowls and other useful containers. But in the early 20th century, potters put a different spin on the ancient art form.

“My grandfather’s generation started with the foundation of functional pots and took a more artistic approach,” says Owen. “They began using more colorful glazes, making aesthetic changes and creating more ornate designs that were inspired by other cultures, like Southeast Asia and the Middle East.”

Word got out about their innovative work, and soon collectors from around the country wanted a coveted piece of Seagrove pottery. Today, more than 80 potters ply their trade in a 20-mile area — the highest concentration of practicing potters in the country. Visitors are invited inside some 50-area studios, along with the North Carolina Pottery Center, to admire and purchase a variety of pottery, from historic reproductions and tableware to museum-quality decorative pieces.

DISCOVER A VIBRANT WORLD OF PERFORMING ARTS, FEATURING THEATER,
MUSIC, DANCE AND LOCAL TALENT. | By Eleanor Spicer Rice

The poet and playwright Oscar Wilde said it best: “Art is a means of union among men, joining them together in the same feelings, and indispensable for the life and progress toward well-being of individuals and of humanity.” In Moore County, arts organizations give the community plenty of reasons to come together in a celebration of beauty and talent.

From their home on the Sandhills Community College campus, four venues make up Bradshaw Performing Arts Center. There’s Evelyn’s Courtyard, an outdoor space designed for small performances; Owens Auditorium, a recently renovated 595-seat performance hall where the North Carolina Symphony and Carolina Philharmonic perform; McPherson Theater, an 80-seat intimate, black-box experience; and McNeill-Woodward Green, a large outdoor space nestled in the heart of campus.

Moore County’s only professional theater company, Judson Theatre Company produces five shows a year, including plays and musicals performed at Owens Auditorium. In the summer, they put on three productions in the McPherson Theatre.

In Southern Pines, Encore! features educational programs and performing arts, ranging from dance and music to theater. If you’re interested in taking art classes, ask about their weekly offerings, where students explore art techniques and mediums to create original works of art. Classes are offered for ages 6-8, 9-12, and pupils 12 and up.

On stage at the charming Sunrise Theater in the heart of Southern Pines are all the shows, movies and performances that make you happy: classic movies, live pickin’ and grinnin’, and community theater.

Weymouth Center for the Arts & Humanities has always celebrated cultural exchange and novel experiences. Their community and special events include Yoga and Soundbaths in the Gardens, the annual Party for the Pine, Ladies Wine Out, and Women of Weymouth monthly meetings and speakers.

Since it was built more than 100 years ago as part of the original Boyd mansion, the Campbell House has been a beacon of civic life. Today, surrounded by a 14-acre public park and garden, the Campbell House’s first floor is home to the Arts Council’s Visual Arts Programs galleries. Stop by to view artwork by local, regional and national artists in a variety of media.

Come Sunday Jazz

Against the serene backdrop of the Weymouth Center’s historic grounds, the Come Sunday Jazz Series offers an unforgettable blend of rhythm and soul beneath the pines. Among the gardens on the Great Lawn of the Boyd House, talented artists and groups entertain concertgoers of all ages. From the vintage swing of Sidecar Social Club to the lyrical brilliance of Virginia MacDonald, each performance brings a distinct flavor to Sunday afternoons in Southern Pines. The series achieves an artful blend of tradition and innovation — six Sundays of music that move both heart and spirit.

THE SOUND OF MUSIC IS SWELLING IN A SMALL MOORE COUNTY TOWN AND EVERYONE'S LISTENING. | By Lance Elko

With an average age of 39, Southern Pines runs on a youthful energy. Since it was established in the late 1800s, the town's residents have lauded its easy demeanor, charm and commitment to historic preservation.

But the growing buzz is all about music, and the centerpiece is the Sunshine Theater. Across the street from the quaint downtown Amtrak station, where the train runs twice daily, this impeccably restored, history-rich venue is drawing listeners from all over Moore County and beyond.

Walking in, the Sunrise is immediately impressive: polished wood, wainscoting and a care to detail that testifies to the devotion and care of the theater. Perhaps most striking is the intimacy afforded to the audience. The theater seats 361 with 71 in the balcony. The surround sound system, a newer addition, complements what Executive Director Tim Russell says is an "acoustically perfect auditorium." For a modestly sized venue, the stage is deep and wide, accommodating a generous array of players and instruments.

In Southern Pines' first brick building, the Sunrise began as a hardware store in 1898. After years of changes — a furniture company, grocery store, a meeting place for fraternal clubs — the owner in 1941 extended the building to create a movie theater with a balcony.

The theater survived through fits and starts into the late 1990s until interest waned and demolition was imminent. A new lease on life was granted when citizens formed a Save Our Sunrise campaign, which gave birth to the Sunrise Preservation Group. After years of refurbishments, increasing donations, and a state-of-the-art projector, the theater returned to showing films.

Sunrise has been a flurry of activity under the management of the personable Russell, who took the helm in 2024. A Boston native, Russell moved to Southern Pines with his wife Natasha in 2017. Their equestrian interests drew them to the area, and they quickly became patrons of the Sunrise to see films and plays.

While live music is the main attraction for the theater, Sunrise also offers selected movies and unique cinematic experiences, including live simulcasts from the Met in New York and the Paris ballet, among other streamed performances from the likes of Springsteen, Josh Groban and Grateful Dead archival shows.

The Sunrise also entertains outdoors. The theater owns a large adjacent lawn with a sound stage that's active on First Fridays from May to November. The event, says Russell, is all about live music, community, food and libations — and the green space fills quickly.

Russell uses the theater's website, the marquee and large posters at the Sunrise entrance to announce coming events. Last year, says Russell, "We had live music at least three times a month on average. This year, I anticipate we will have a signature event nearly every weekend."

ACROSS THE COUNTRY, GUITARISTS TUNE IN TO A SOUTHERN PINES SHOP. | By Lance Elko

If the Sunrise Theater is the hub of live entertainment, Casino Guitars is where the musicians hang out. The brainchild of the free-spirited Baxter Clement, a professional musician and engaging raconteur, the shop is a guitarist's wonderland. For electric or acoustic players, Casino is a showcase of some of the most desirable guitars under one roof. Fender, Gibson, Gretsch, PRS, Martin, Taylor and other top-of-the-line names adorn the walls. And the shop's guest policy is a boon to anyone with a pick — take a guitar off the wall, have a seat and play.

First impressions dazzle in the main showroom. To the left, right and in front, the varied colors and shapes of the electric guitars festooning the walls are aesthetic pleasures. Sofas, chairs and a house puppy offer a warm welcome. Down a long hall toward the back, smaller rooms off to the side hold acoustic guitars and seats, inviting players to hear some of the best money can buy.

"I have always dreamed of a guitar shop different from the model of the big box," says Clement, who bought the building (once an actual casino) in 2006, created teaching studios a year later and then opened the showroom in 2015.

As interest in the shop grew, so did the inventory and the staff — "everyone who works here is a musician," Clement says. Casino's reputation as a guitar mecca is reinforced by its YouTube channel, which boasts more than 71,000 subscribers. The Shop Tour and Behind the Scenes video on the channel is a journey every guitar player should take.

Casino makes much of its sales — guitars, amps, pedals, and accessories — online and ships all over the world.

In a town as small as Southern Pines, the size and energy of the burgeoning music scene seems almost incongruous. "This town has a fountain of talent. I think there is a bit of magic in the air here, honestly," says Clement.

WHETHER YOU WANT TO DANCE LATE INTO THE NIGHT OR CHILL UNDER THE STARS, YOU'LL FIND A LIVE MUSIC EXPERIENCE TO SUIT YOU IN A TRIO OF SANDHILLS TOWNS. | By Jimmy Ryals

Few have seen more of Moore County's music scene than Mary Stone (@sopinesscene), a singer-songwriter known for her country tunes. As a resident of Southern Pines, she's an all-around booster for live music in Pinehurst, Southern Pines and the Sandhills.

"This is not like other towns," she says. "It's a great date-night place. As a bar scene, it's fun and it's very safe."

On any given Thursday, Friday or Saturday night, you can catch live music at more than a dozen bars in downtown Pinehurst or Southern Pines. Stone keeps tabs on all of them at her Instagram and Facebook pages. She offers suggestions to suit every vibe.

Looking for a mix of rock and pop covers in a cozy, living room-like environment? Check out the downstairs bar at Neville's Club (130 W. New Hampshire Ave., Southern Pines). Interested in concerts under the stars? Check out the outdoor stages at Bell Tree Tavern (155 NE Broad St.) and 1901 Lounge at the Jefferson Inn (150 W. New Hampshire Ave.) in Southern Pines.

Also in Southern Pines, the grassy lawn at Red's Corner invites folding chairs, picnic blankets (find a plethora of food and beer at the food trucks and beer garden) and a knee-slapping good time brought to you by talented acts (redscornersp.com).

If a day on the links leaves you looking for music close to Pinehurst, you've got options. Dugan's Pub, Drum & Quill, Villaggio Ristorante & Bar and Pinehurst Brewing Co. host bands most Friday and Saturday nights, and they're all located in a tight, quarter-mile loop downtown.

At all of these venues, you'll see local bands and singers playing covers that cross genres. But most of them have big dreams and a trove of original songs that they'll play if you ask.

Moore County's own Julia Golden is fulfilling her life's dream. Since she was a young teen, she wanted to sing and to write music. Last year's CCMA Winner for Best Emerging New Artist, Julia performs on the east coast but most frequently in the area. The singer/songwriter considers herself "a country-rock singer/songwriter, but I like to blend eras and genres to create my own sound."

Casino Guitars' Baxter Clement has high hopes for the young artist. "I cannot say enough about how much talent she has," he says. "Keep an eye out for her."

A VISIT TO TUFTS ARCHIVES, NESTLED IN THE BACK OF THE GIVEN MEMORIAL LIBRARY, REVEALS DELIGHTFUL SURPRISES AND INSIGHTS INTO THE HISTORY OF THE VILLAGE OF PINEHURST. | By Robin Sutton Anders

Walking around the Village of Pinehurst feels like a dream — picturesque storefronts, flower-lined sidewalks, rocking chairs shaded by pines and oaks. In the heart of it all, the brick Given Memorial Library with its stately white columns stands as a living, breathing monument of the town's literary heritage.

The Village of Pinehurst actually was a dream, says Audrey Moriarty, from the Tufts Archives in the library's back wing. It was the dream of James Walker Tufts, who arrived from Boston with a dream of building a health resort. Enamored by the Sandhills' "pine ozone," and fresh, clean water, he bought 6,000 acres and set about building a resort modeled off of a traditional New England village.

THE MOORE COUNTY MURAL TRAIL PRESERVES THE HISTORY AND PROJECTS THE SPIRIT OF SIX COMMUNITIES. | By Jimmy Ryals

A moment only happens once. We can't experience the town of Carthage's heyday as a hub of the bustling cart-and-buggy industry or Cameron's moment at the top of the dewberry industry.

But in Moore County, a collection of larger-than-life artworks captures the spirit of the past, present and future of six towns on the Moore County Mural Trail. More than 25 paintings range in size from knee-high fire hydrants to panoramic building sides.

Some murals honor people who made outsized contributions to their communities. In Robbins, a painting on a South Middleton Street building captures astronaut Charles E. Brady, who set a record for most days in space in 1996.

Other murals are, themselves, pieces of history. The oil-on-canvas mural in the Southern Pines Post Office lobby dates to 1943, when the building and painting were both created as part of the New Deal. Two blocks away, a massive American flag has graced the side of The Pilot newspaper's offices since just after the attacks of Sept. 11, 2001.

Several murals pay homage to the area's rich agricultural and equestrian traditions. Murals in Cameron and Carthage reference those town's dewberry and tobacco crops, respectively. Horses appear in at least four scenes, with two in Southern Pines devoted to the Sandhills' horse history.

And some of these paintings are dedicated to the here and now. Artist Lacey Crime, a military veteran, painted a pair of red, white and blue angel wings and the words "Be fearless" on the furniture of the Pines building in Aberdeen, a celebration of the town's persistent spirit.

Get the Full Story

Carthage boasts the highest concentration of murals on the trail. It's also the first town in North Carolina to create a digital trail. The town adds plaques with QR codes to each of its murals. Each code links to a video that offers deeper information on the people and scenes depicted.

Chef Warren Lewis and his wife, Marianne opened this Southern Pines bistro in 1998. Their creative fusion menu, featuring everything from classic French cuisine to North Carolina swordfish and pork schnitzel with mac 'n' cheese gives guests an opportunity to explore and try something new. The area is brimming with outstanding restaurants, so thanks to dedicated chefs who put their heart and soul into their craft, there's tons of great food here.

Recently, Chef and his wife decided to eye their next course in life and sold the establishment to Amy and Ray Helvig. The Helvigs and executive chef Joe Novobilski say they plan to honor the legacy and environment that initially drew them to the Lewises and Chef Warren's.

"For Ray and I, kindness is the most important value, and Warren and Marianne just embody that in everything that they do, how they treat people, how they treat their employees – I hate to even call them employees because it's a family," said new co-owner Amy Helvig. "And each family that keeps on coming in for dinner there, I hate to call them regulars or patrons, because it really is so much more. It embodies the value of breaking bread and sitting down to actually talk to people and put the world on pause for a minute. "It's one reason why the name of the restaurant will remain Chef Warren's", said Helvig, to honor what the Lewises have built and the Helvigs' intention to continue that tradition.

EXCELLENT SERVICE

FILL YOUR CUP AT VETERAN-OWNED DISTILLERIES AND BREWERIES.

By Laura Lee

With Fort Liberty, formerly known as Fort Bragg, just 30 miles away, many Army veterans have set up shop in the Sandhills. Military-owned artisan distilleries and craft breweries are especially spirited places to visit and celebrate the service of the brave men and women who have served our country.

BHAWK

At their Southern Pines distillery, Army veterans Brad and Jessica Halling invite patrons to raise a glass to the American spirit. BHAWK, which stands for Brad Halling American Whiskey Kompany, is also a nod to “Black Hawk Down,” a film about the 1993 military mission in Somalia, where Brad served and survived. His new mission is to make the most of his second chance at life and show his gratitude to the extraordinary men he served beside. His-and-hers bottles include the Sergeant’s Valor and Madame Colonel and can be dedicated to a loved one. After sipping smooth blends of bourbon, whiskey and rye, visit the Gratitude Room, a living museum of military service and sacrifice. hallingwhiskey.com

Pinehurst BREWING COMPANY

BREWING TRADITION AND INNOVATION, THIS LOCAL FAVORITE
SERVES UP CRAFT BEERS IN A HISTORIC SETTING. | By Alex Podlogar

The latest in luxury amenities — heat and electricity — welcomed The Holly Inn’s guests when they arrived on New Year’s Eve in 1895.

In the century that followed, steam produced by the Village Power House powered the hotels and cottages of Pinehurst until it was shuttered in the 1990s and, at one time, slated for demolition. In 2018, following a full renovation by Pinehurst Resort to recapture the character of the century-old building, the steam plant reopened to bring a new kind of energy to the Village. Enter Pinehurst Brewing Company.

Perhaps no other dining venue in Pinehurst draws as hearty a mix of local residents, resort guests and golfers. With up to 10 beers brewed on-site by head brewmaster Hunter Downing and an array of smoked meats like North Carolina barbecue, brisket, wings — and, on Mondays and Tuesdays, a ribs special — it’s not surprising Pinehurst Brewing Company has become a favorite watering hole.

So much of that ambiance emanates from the building itself. The brewhouse’s walls remain blackened from the decades it housed massive steam boilers. Its exterior brick corbeling, rarely seen in architecture today, is preserved, and the vintage arches and windows are restored.

The plant’s smokestack was rebuilt using its original base, returning a lost but defining feature of the Village’s early landscape. Inside, table legs, light fixtures and other accoutrements are made up of parts salvaged from the ruins of the plant, creating a space and an experience unlike any other in Pinehurst.

James Creek Cider House

A MOORE COUNTY COUPLE CREATES CIDERS THAT REFLECT THE FRUIT, THE SEASON AND THE LAND. | By Liz Ferrelli

When Ann Marie and David Thornton planted their first 60 heirloom apple trees in January 2009, they were chasing a hobby and a dream. What began as a 7-acre passion project has since grown into James Creek Cider House, one of North Carolina's leading craft cider makers. Today, with orchards in Moore County and a tasting room in Cameron, James Creek has become a destination for cider lovers and curious first-timers.

From James Creek's tasting room, guests can sip cider on a wraparound porch with beautiful orchard views, wander the orchard itself or relax in the outdoor cider garden. The atmosphere is family- and dog-friendly, and often includes local food trucks, live music and community events like Music Bingo on Thursdays, and the first and third Sunday Farmers' Market.

James Creek produces two distinct cider lines. Their own James Creek label includes traditional-style, harvest-based ciders like the Summer Gold and Harvest Moon. The Stargazer label embraces modern creativity with fruit-infused and barrel-aged ciders, made from their own apples blended with locally sourced juices such as blueberry basil or peach.

Stargazer's flagship Big Dipper, a "lightly sweet carbonated cider," has earned national attention, with James Creek recently ranked the seventh best cider in the United States by USA Today's 10 Best.

Like any orchard, James Creek has faced challenges from weather, pests and the unpredictability of farming. But their dedication to quality fruit and craft methods has kept them resilient. Over time, the Thorntons expanded to a larger farm in Cameron, giving them the space to increase their apple acreage and build out cider production facilities.

They now cultivate more than 65 varieties of heirloom and cider apples, many tracing their roots to England, France and Spain. They also grow peaches, blueberries, muscadines, pears and persimmons. Meanwhile, their commercial cider production has expanded from local to statewide distribution, and now ships to 38 states across the country.

"Our crew makes the experience fun," says team member Amanda Marcum. "Sampling cider isn't just about the drink, it's about the people you share it with."

For Ann Marie and David Thornton, that's exactly the point. What started as a handful of apple trees has become a place where community, agriculture and craft come together — proof that with patience and passion, the seeds of an idea can grow into something extraordinary and delicious.

ON A ROLL

MOORE COUNTY FOOD TRUCKS ARE DRIVING THE CULINARY SCENE.

By Laura Lee

Red's Corner

Any given evening at Red's Corner in Southern Pines, you'll usually find a crowd. Military families, golfers, friends, neighbors, couples, tourists and dogs all gather on the back porch of the Sandhills.

"When there's great food, live music and a beautiful sunset — it's just about as close to nirvana as you can get," says Scott Bertrand, Red's Corner owner/operator.

Since opening in 2022, the food truck park, beer garden and live music venue has become a local favorite. Red's Corner features six food trucks each day, and the lineup rotates throughout the week.

"Variety is the spice of life," says

Bertrand. "This truly is the big leagues of food trucking. You can find something recognizable like a hot dog, wood-fired pizza or a really good smash burger, but you'll also find some really amazing and unique gourmet foods to try."

While you can always rely on Red's Corner for its lively scene, the area's food trucks also roll up at weekly events and year-round festivals like Live After Five; First Fridays; Eats, Beats and Brews; the Food Truck Rodeo; AutumnFest and more.

Lindsay O'Reilly opened her food truck, Tanglewood Farms, about a year ago. She's been blown away by the community's overwhelming support.

"We have so many food trucks for a town this size, and there's enough business to go around," she says. "We live in such a unique place, that's charming and different, where locals really support small businesses."

O'Reilly says because owning a food truck is more accessible than opening a brick-and-mortar restaurant, a plethora of chefs are able to showcase their skills and garner a loyal following. "There's a lot of talent and creativity here," she says. "You'd think we'd all be in competition with one another, but nobody acts that way. We're a family."

Describe the culinary scene

Each town has its own charm and feel. We're rooted in Southern hospitality and tradition, but with lots of creative things going on.

Favorite restaurant

195 American Fusion. I love their sweet chili shrimp, hand-cut truffle fries, fresh salads and fish specials.

Best spot for a beer

The Sly Fox Pub has a great international beer list, and we have great local breweries like The Railhouse.

For a fun night out

The Rec Room is an arcade with a full bar, and Red's Corner is super popular.

Best cup of coffee

Maisonette in downtown Southern Pines knows good coffee and has a great pistachio-filled croissant.

Best foodie tip

Don't leave town without first having grits, fried green tomatoes and Carolina barbecue.

CHEF MEG CHURCH

Best breakfast

I love grabbing an avocado toast from Agora Bakery. It's really fresh and healthy.

Special occasion spot

For my husband's birthday we went to Tartare. The chef does really classical French cuisine and comes out and plays violin. I don't know how he manages to do both! It's a very European vibe.

Best ethnic food

I love going to Neco Thai & Sushi in Pinehurst for the Tuna Madness roll.

Best hidden gem

Vito's Italian in Southern Pines has really good pizza like what you'd find in Italy.

Biggest indulgence

My 10-year-old daughter loves C. Cups Cupcakery in Southern Pines and Sweet Carolina, an ice cream parlor in Aberdeen.

Best foodie tip

Open yourself up to new experiences, be adventurous and try new cuisine — especially on vacation.

Moore DOGS

DREAMING ABOUT A WEEKEND GETAWAY BUT DON'T WANT TO LEAVE YOUR FURRY FRIEND AT HOME? WITH PLENTY OF OUTDOOR DINING OPTIONS, PET-FRIENDLY ACCOMMODATIONS AND WIDE, OPEN SPACES, MOORE COUNTY IS YOUR PERFECT DESTINATION. | By Breyton Hill

OUTDOORS

Tufts Memorial Park

Nicknamed “Village Green,” this park is the perfect place to let your dog enjoy a walk on the giant green lawn and through the woody trails.

Weymouth Woods Nature Preserve

With more than 7 miles of hiking trails, Weymouth Woods is sure to tire your dog out while you get to enjoy the southeastern landscape of longleaf pines forests.

Aberdeen Lake Park

Get outside and walk around the lake in Aberdeen, complete with a fountain in the middle. There are plenty of tables and grills around the park for a picturesque picnic spot with your dog.

PET-FRIENDLY RESTAURANTS

Drum & Quill

It's fitting that this restaurant, voted “most authentic pub,” offers an outdoor patio dogs, too, find irresistible.

Villager Deli

Open for both breakfast and lunch since 1982, the Villager Deli is the perfect spot to start you and your pup's adventure.

Sly Fox

Find a place at the patio and order a classic British meal. While you dine, your dog will enjoy the outdoorsy ambiance.

Betsy's Crepes

At this Southern Pines favorite for sweet and savory breakfast and lunch crepes, pets are welcome inside or out.

Buggy Town Coffee

With a mission “to make your day better,” Buggy Town Coffee is embracing novelty with a new coffee every week with local family recipes and guest roasters from all around North Carolina. You can make your dog's day better by ordering them a pup cup and getting a seat out on the patio.

PET-FRIENDLY BREWERIES

Pinehurst Brewing Company

With a warm welcome for pets, brunch on the weekends, and live music on Friday and Saturday nights, this is a fantastic place to wind up after exploring the trails and parks of Moore County with your dog.

Brad Halling American Whiskey Ko. (BHAWK)

With a commitment to honoring and expressing gratitude to those who have served our nation, husband and wife Brad and Jess Halling have created a one-of-a-kind whiskey distillery experience for visitors and their furry friends.

Railhouse Brewery

Honored to be Moore County's oldest craft brewery, Railhouse Brewery welcomes family, friends, and pets, and remains determined to find your new favorite beer.
